Beautiful Blank Quilt Pieces

These quilted templates can be used in so many ways and are fantastic for igniting your students' imaginations. Whether you need an art project, want to weave in SEL (social-emotional learning) into a lesson, or are exploring academic topics, this versatile resource makes learning fun and meaningful.

Engage your students in a creative brain break as they stitch together a stunning display they'll all be proud to show off!

How to Use

There are two ways to use these quilt templates:

Paper Version: Print the templates for students to write or draw on by hand. They can add text, glue on printed images, and color in their designs.

Digital Version (Google Slides): Students can type directly onto the quilt piece, insert images, change fonts, and even use Word Art to create bubble letters after printing. This option is great for teachers who want to customize instructions, or adapt the activity for specific lessons or themes.

Extra Ideas for Use

Art Projects

Turn each piece into a colorful masterpiece as kids color, paint, or use markers. Using the pre-made patterns, they can add a word or phrase to continue the pattern to fill in the blank space.

✔ Colorways: Pick two colors (say, yellow and blue) that the whole class loves. Explain how they can use different shades of those colors and create new shades by blending colors (yellow + blue = green!).

✔ Shading: Have them use light shading or rub shaved pencil lead over the lines for a soft, dreamy look!

✔ Swirly Birds: Swirl markers or crayons into the corners.

✔ Nature Blast: Draw leaves, flowers, or animals.

✔ Stamps: Use stamps to add patterns or designs.

Goal Quits

Get your kids dreaming big or fixing things with these fun ideas! They can write down what's on their mind or how they'll step up to get them aiming high!

✔ Dreams: Students write their hopes, dreams, or ambitions in the center.

✔ Personal Pledge: Talk about a classroom issue (like too much noise or disruptions) and have them write their fix, like "I will raise my hand before speaking."

✔ Work Ethic: Encourage self-reflection by having students identify an area to improve (e.g., "I will slow down and check my work for mistakes").

✔ Skill Builder: Kids jot down a cool thing they want to learn to do, like "I'll learn to skate!"

✔ Classroom Rules: Discuss your classroom rules as a class and give each student a chance to write their own rule on a quilt piece.

Use fun quilts as a fun way to reinforce your SEL lessons.

7. Teaches Color and Shape Recognition

Working with a rainbow of colors and all sorts of shapes is a great way for kids to learn. They'll start recognizing colors and shapes, and discover something new!

8. Soothes, Relaxes, and Supports Mindfulness

Coloring is like a warm hug for the mind. It's a gentle way to process their emotions, especially when they're feeling stressed. They focus on choosing colors and filling in shapes, which can help them manage big emotions, especially helpful for kids who struggle with anxiety. It's a simple, enjoyable way to center themselves and relax.

9. Encourages Social Skills and Bonding

Coloring needn't be a solo activity. It can be a wonderful way for kids to bond with others! When children color together, whether in a classroom or at home, they learn to share supplies, take turns, and chat about their designs. It's a simple way to practice social skills like cooperation and communication.

➔ Lots of ideas for use

➔ Facts about the benefits of coloring for kids

➔ Uses over & over for multiple lessons!

1. Boosts Fine Motor Skills

Coloring is like a mini workout for those tiny fingers, hands, and wrists. As kids grip their crayons and carefully color, they're strengthening the small muscles needed to manipulate objects, like buttoning a shirt or tying shoelaces.

2. Sharpens Hand-Eye Coordination

Ever notice how focused kids get when they're coloring? That's because coloring requires careful attention to detail and precision helps the stage for skills like writing and catching a ball.

3. Enhances Spatial Awareness

Coloring is a fantastic way for kids to explore how to keep their pencil strokes inside the lines. It helps them understand spatial relationships and sharpening their visual perception.

4. Builds Concentration and Focus

There's something so satisfying about watching a blank page turn into a colorful masterpiece. That focus, sticking with it, and developing concentration and perseverance are all part of the process.

5. Increases Confidence and Self-Esteem

The joy on a child's face when they finish a coloring page is a beautiful sight. It's a gentle way to process their emotions, especially when they're feeling stressed. They focus on choosing colors and filling in shapes, which can help them manage big emotions, especially helpful for kids who struggle with anxiety. It's a simple, enjoyable way to center themselves and relax.
